MITCHELL ARRAIGNS LABOR TRADUCER

New York, May 26.—The recent arraignment of organized labor made here in the course of his speech of acceptance by John Kirby, of Dayton, Ohio, newly elected president of the National Association of Manufacturers, is made the subject of a condemnatory article by John Mitchell, formerly president of the United Mine Workers of America, published in the current issue of the National Civic Federation Review.

Mr. Mitchell first quotes Mr. Kirby as saying that he had been elected because the members of the association knew where he stood on the labor question. He contrasts Mr. Kirby's utterances on organized labor with those of President Taft, Pope Leo XIII., Cardinal Manning, Gladstone, Mark Hanna, Potter Palmer, Wendell Phillips, Bishop Potter and Melville E. Lugs.

From this parallel Mr. Mitchell deduces that "the only truthful and sane declaration made by the newly chosen spokesman of the National Association of Manufacturers is that in which he says: 'I have not been selected as your president on account of my ability.'"

Paradoxical as it may appear," concludes Mr. Mitchell, "the representatives of this employers' association in one breath decry and denounce what they term 'class divisions' and 'class hatreds,' and in the next breath malign and berate their fellow citizens who are workingmen, and all other groups in society by sympathy with the legitimate purposes and high ideals of the labor movement."

"They claim and proclaim the right and necessity of organization and class employers, yet deny to workingmen the right of organization and combination. They prate about law and order, yet advocate violence and anarchy; they suggest the use of cannon as a means of dispersing the workingmen; they malign and traduce the great majority of the employers of labor who refuse to join them in carrying forward their unholy and un-American designs to destroy the organized labor movement."

FOR A GERMAN COUNCIL KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

A Meeting of Catholic Men of German Birth Will be Held Sunday Afternoon to Consider Project.

At a meeting of Catholic men of German birth or extraction to be held Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at St. Joseph's church, the idea of forming a German council of the Knights of Columbus in this city will be broached. This idea was started last Sunday at the banquet of the Knights held at the Strathfield when Rev. Hubert Dahme, pastor of St. Joseph's German Catholic church, was present as a guest of William Flynn, who was instrumental in the organization of the John F. Rogers council which has prospered so well. Father Dahme was very much impressed with the degree of work of the order, and when the question of a strictly German council was broached, he expressed himself as being well pleased and would do all in his power to further it. The project has taken deep root within so short a time, the prospects of a strong German council already appearing are bright. When the council is organized the entire charge of it will be left to the members. Some noted degree team will be brought here to put on the work.

A Remarkable Dwarf.

Perhaps the most remarkable dwarf on record was Sir Jeffrey Hudson, the little fellow whom Scott introduces in "Peveril of the Peak." He was born in Rutlandshire, England, in 1619.

When eight years of age he was presented by the Duke of Buckingham to Queen Henrietta in a cold pie. He afterward became attached to the court of Charles I. At one of the court masks the king's porter, a man of gigantic size, who used to torment the little dwarf, pulled from one pocket a loaf of bread and from the other Jeffrey, much to the surprise and amusement of the company present. Jeffrey was at this time only eighteen inches in height.

He remained at this stature until he was thirty years of age, after which a curious exception to the laws of growth took place, since Jeffrey rapidly grew to be three feet nine inches in height, whereas most men do not grow a quarter of an inch after the age of thirty. This dwarf had an enormous head and very large hands and feet; otherwise his proportions were symmetrical, and his face was considered handsome.—Youth's Companion.

The Useful Donkey.

In Syria, says a traveler, I saw a donkey put to an extraordinary use. One evening just before the dinner hour in our tent the Arab cook rushed hurriedly out of the door of the kitchen tent with a glass carafe in his hand. He went up to the row of donkeys, horses and packages tethered close by. Seizing the tail of the smallest of the donkeys, he hastily thrust it into the carafe, gave it two or three vigorous turns inside the bottle and then quickly removed the unconcerned tail. Thus he had cleansed the water bottle for our dinner. It is in Syria also that the strange fashion exists of shaving the donkeys' coats in different ways, much as a lady of fashion shaves her French poodle. A choice breed of donkeys, known as "Bagdad mules," is much cherished in the neighborhood of Damascus. Their long, hairy coat, usually of pure white or pale gray, admits of fantastic clipping.

Meals in the Dark Ages.

Few references can be found as to the manner in which a meal was served and eaten during the dark ages. As near as we can learn, the soup was put in a big bowl with ears, called a "porringer." There was seldom a spoon for each person. Those who had spoons dipped them into the porringer, and the liquid was carried directly to each mouth. Those who were without spoons drank their soup from the porringer, holding it by one of the ears, or else borrowed a spoon of their neighbor. The meats were placed in a large vessel in the center of the table. Each person present at the meal picked out with his fingers such bits as he desired. One or two knives answered for half a dozen guests. Those who were without knives borrowed from those who had them. As a rule, the guests at table used their own knives. There is no evidence that napkins were supplied to guests at this period. At any rate, no mention is made of them.

Tipstaves.

Tipstaves, otherwise known as "old Charles," "Bow street runners" and "Tom tits," were formerly used in England by officers of the law, or police in private clothes, to show their authority. They were generally carried up the sleeve or in a pocket conveniently at hand, and the officer would draw his tipstaff and touch the person to be arrested on the shoulder. I say, "I arrest you in the name of the king," just as now a policeman produces his warrant. They were generally made of wood, mounted with brass or silver and tipped with a brass, ivory or carved wooden crown, whence the name tipstaff was derived. They varied in size from five to nine inches in length. The men who carried them were also called "Bow street runners." The last survivor died in 1894 at the age of eighty-five.

A Skin Game.

"Things are not always what they seem," said an officer of one of the big leather companies the other day at a gathering of leather men. "Once upon a time there were six good little goats in a field. They died young, like all good little goats with good skins, and the fellow who was responsible for their death shipped those skins to a tannery. When they came out the skin of one little goat was an elephant's hide, that of the second little goat was a monkey skin, that of the third was a sealskin, the fourth a sea lion, the fifth a green frog skin and the skin of the sixth came out a beautiful walrus hide."—New York Times.

Browning and an Umbrella.

A correspondent writes to the London Chronicle that he once came upon Robert Browning in Piccadilly in lively dispute with a stranger who had carried his closed umbrella over his shoulder or under his arm, with the end sticking out. Browning, walking behind, struck down the dangerous point with an energetic stick. "I always do it," said the poet with just indignation and in no measured tones.

The man protested aloud, but Browning explained to the gathering crowd and justified himself fully. No one seemed to know how illustrious was the brawler.

A Wonderful Voice. Lablache had the most magnificent bass voice ever known to the lyric stage. It had a compass of two octaves, from E flat below to E flat above the bass staff. He was a man of prodigious size and strength, and his voice was proportioned to his physical dimensions. Nothing was able to overcome or drown it, and through the tones of the largest chorus it boomed out as justly as though alone. More than once he broke a window pane by the strength of the vibrations caused by his monstrous voice.

Making Matters Worse.

The English papers tell a quaint story of Lord Leighton, the painter. Two women were looking at his picture of "Helen of Troy." "It is a horrid picture," one remarked to the painter. "I'm sorry, but it's mine," said Sir Frederick, as he then was. "Oh," said the woman, "you don't mean to say you've bought it?" "No; I painted it," was the reply. "Oh," declared the women, "you must not mind what we say. We are only saying what everybody else says."

Glamour of the Footlights.

Mary Anderson Navarro talked also a good deal about the stage and told me that no one who had not lived behind the scenes could have any idea how utterly, hopelessly wearisome it was to live in a world where all things from the sun and the moon downward were shams.—Grant Duff's "Notes From a Diary."

Ardent Lover.

Kloseman—I'm looking for another girl. Object, matrimony. Ascum—Why, I thought Miss Pechis had accepted you. Kloseman—So she did, but the ring I had didn't fit her, so I've got to find somebody else.—Catholic Standard and Times.

His Objection.

"It is too bad that Higgins wastes his time writing poetry." "I don't mind his wasting his own time," answered the severe man, "but he has no right to waste my time reading it aloud to me."—Washington Star.

A Little Help Wanted.

Old Financier—Young man, you must remember that there's always room at the top of the ladder. Applicant for Job—Um! Would you mind giving me a boost so I can see for myself?—Detroit Free Press.

Life has no blessing like a prudent friend.—Euripides.

That Oozy Feeling.

The Visitor—What a delightfully snug little flat you have! The Renter—Isn't it? When we open the door we're in the middle of the room, and when the sunshine comes in we have to move some of the furniture out.—Chicago Tribune.

Anonymous.

A Birmingham churchwarden was reading at a vestry meeting a list of subscriptions to the parochial funds. The list began as follows: "The vicar, a guinea; Mrs. —, half a guinea; an anonymous donor, myself, 25 shillings."

The Gift of Gardens.

God Almighty first planted a garden. And, indeed, it is the purest of human pleasures; it is the greatest refreshment to the spirits of man, without which buildings and palaces are but gross handicraft, and a man shall ever see that when ages grow to civility and elegance men come to build stately sooner than to garden finely, as if gardening were the greater perfection. I do hold it, in the royal order of gardens there ought to be gardens for all the months in the year, in which, severally, things of beauty may be then in season.—Lord Bacon.

His Stand in the Fight.

They were giving a reception to the battle scarred hero. "I am delighted to meet you, captain," exclaimed Miss Gushingly. "So you were one of the men behind the guns?"

"Great Scott, no, ma'am!" responded the named veteran. "I was one of the men in front of the guns. Don't I look it?"—Chicago Tribune.

Enterprise.

An English paper contains the following enterprising advertisement:

JAMES OYSTER-MERCHANT. Two dozen best oysters can be obtained for 2s. 6d.

Should death be proved to have occurred through eating same, a decent funeral guaranteed.

The Backbiter.

I never yet heard man or woman much abused that I was not inclined to think the better of them and to transfer the suspicion or dislike to the one who found pleasure in pointing out the defects of another.—Jane Porter.
